A $2 million dispute between billionaire sex offender Jeffrey Epstein and attorneys who represented 15 women who claimed the Palm Beach resident sexually abused them is apparently over.

In court papers filed late Monday, attorneys representing Miami law firm Podhurst Orseck said a settlement had been reached with Epstein. Terms of the agreement weren't spelled out.

Podhurst Orseck filed suit against Epstein last month, claiming his refusal to pay its legal bill constituted a violation of an agreement the money manager signed to escape federal charges. As part of the 2007 plea deal, Epstein agreed to pay attorneys to negotiate settlements on behalf of the 33 women who told federal prosecutors he had paid them for sexually charged massages at his Palm Beach mansion when some were as young as 14.

Twelve of the women sought the help of Podhurst partner Robert Josefsberg, who was appointed to negotiate settlements. He also represented three women in civil lawsuits that were also settled for undisclosed amounts. About a dozen other women hired other attorneys to represent them. Most of those lawsuits are still pending.

Epstein, 57, argued that Podhurst inflated its costs. He said he had already paid the firm roughly $500,000 and didn't believe he owed another $2 million. He offered to put $2 million in a court registry until the dispute was resolved.

Epstein pleaded guilty to two sex-related charges and was released from the Palm Beach County jail in July after serving 13 months of an 18-month jail sentence. In return, federal prosecutors agreed not to pursue him for crimes that could have sent him to prison for decades.

JUDGE ORDERS N.Y. PAPER TO GIVE UP EPSTEIN TAPE

The New York Daily News must turn over a tape-recorded interview between reporter George Rush and sex offender Jeffrey Epstein because the information cannot be obtained anywhere else and outweighs reporter's privilege, a federal judge has ruled.

Attorneys Brad Edwards and Paul Cassell have been fighting to obtain the tape in representing their client Jane Doe, a minor at the time of Epstein's abuse. Since Epstein has asserted his Fifth Amendment privilege in depositions, the taped conversation is the only way the jury can hear Epstein in his own words, the attorneys say.

After listening to the 22-minute recording and reading the transcript, Manhattan U.S. District Judge Lawrence McKenna agreed in his six-page ruling.

Of particular relevance, McKenna noted "a statement included in the first full paragraph attributed to Mr. Epstein at page 15 of the transcript ... the court finds that the materials at issue 'are not reasonably obtainable from other available source' ... since the record is quite clear that Mr. Epstein has regularly been asserting, and will continue to assert, his Fifth Amendment privilege to relevant questions. The fact that the recording is in Mr. Epstein's own voice is also significant from a trial perspective."

Portions of the recording can be used related to liability and damages, the ruling says.

But whether the attorneys will have the tape in time for the start of their July 17 trial is still in question.

The judge's order says the recording and transcript will be held in chambers or under seal until any appeal is decided or the time to file a notice of appeal has expired.

"We're happy that the court agreed with our argument that this important evidence supporting Jane Doe's case can be presented to the jury," Cassell said by phone Tuesday.

Laura Handman, attorney for the New York Daily News, said they are appealing the decision.

Epstein, 57, pleaded guilty last year to soliciting a minor for prostitution and soliciting prostitution after a Palm Beach police investigation revealed he paid underage girls for massages and sex acts at his Palm Beach mansion. He served 13 months of his 18-month sentence at the Palm Beach County Stockade and received liberal work-release privileges while in jail. He is currently serving house arrest at his El Brillo Way home.

Epstein signed a federal non-prosecution agreement under which he would not be charged with related federal crimes if he successfully served out his time and abided by the conditions under the state charges. He also waived his right to contest liability and damages in civil lawsuits by 33 minor girls identified by the non-prosecution agreement.
